

THE STORY "MY OLD KENTUCKY HOME"

Young E. Allison Gives Some Interesting Data "Federal Hill" at Bardonia

(By Associated Press)

Louisville, Ky., April 4.—Famous in song and story as the birthplace of "My Old Kentucky Home, Goodnight," "Federal Hill," which is the preserved by popular subscription, has a history that few plantations can equal.

Young E. Allison, of Louisville, from personal investigation of history and traditions, tells the story of "Federal Hill."

Mr. Allison, who is a widely-known Kentucky, illuminates the record with interesting sidelights on personages in the state in their time.

"About one mile from Bardonia, over the heshoe bend in Beech Fork River in Nelson county, Kentucky," he writes, "is the old Rowan estate and home of 'Federal Hill' famous in song and story and figures as the place where in the summer of 1852 Stephen Collins Foster wrote the words and music of 'My Old Kentucky Home.' This house and estate of 210 acres which the people of Kentucky are invited to purchase and preserve as a state park honor of the song. It is one of the most historic places in the whole middle west, dating back to 1795 when John Rowan, then a brilliant young lawyer, in Pennsylvania, built it in the midst of a 1,500-acre plantation and made it the center of political, legal and social life of the Kentucky of olden times."

"Judge Rowan was to become a congressman, United States senator, chief justice of the state and to die as commissioner of the United States to define the boundary line of Mexico in an effort to avoid the war of 1847. He was a great lawyer famous in the practice of civil and criminal law, strong before juries because of his profound reasoning and eloquence. At 14 he had, with his father, fought Indians in the west and was a dead shot. He fought one of the earliest and most deadly duels in the state's history and in his will left his duelling pistols to his eldest son to be handed down and use only in 'the defense of his honor.' The will is recorded in Louisville."

"Judge Rowan loved the practice of law and tried to avoid public office. Some of the greatest early lawyers of Kentucky studied in his office. He accumulated a great fortune in those days. He had a residence in Louisville and made it his home for some years, dying here in 1843. He entertained Lafayette on his visit in 1824, paying all the public expenses and taking him to Federal Hill for a rest. Judge Rowan is buried in the family cemetery at Federal Hill. His children and grandchildren have married into noble families in Europe and have won distinction in many ways. One married a grandee of Spain and was lady-in-waiting to the Queen, another was Princess Rospigliosi of Italy and others married into the English and French peerages."

"Young John Rowan, who succeeded his father on the Federal Hill estate, was remarkably handsome, accomplished and eloquent. He, too, was a duellist and a dead shot. He declined a nomination for governor and to congress and refused all office except once to carry his district for the legislature. President Fillmore induced him to become minister to the Sicilies, where he lived for several years at Naples and Rome and returned in 1851-2."

"The old home at Federal Hill is filled with history. General William Lytel was a nephew of the elder Rowan and often visited there. He wrote the poem, 'I am dying, Egypt, dying.' There also visited Theodore O'Hara, author of 'Bivouac of the Dead.' The house is filled with antique mahogany and rosewood furniture, fine paintings and historic souvenirs. It is essentially a manor house of the old type, well preserved and crowded with tradition, tragic, romantic and historic."

"Stephen C. Foster was not a Kentuckian. He was born on the fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence in 1826, in a village near Pittsburgh. He was a cousin of the Rowans through the Barclay family of Pennsylvania. One of Foster's sisters, Charlotte, who had a beautiful voice and musical talent of her own, died at 19, while she was visiting the Rowans in Louisville at the home across the street from the Catholic Cathedral on Fifth street. Foster went to Federal Hill on his honeymoon tour. He was visiting his kinsman, the younger John Rowan, there in 1852 when the picture of life about him inspired the writing of the immortal song, 'My Old Kentucky Home.' He generally composed music while wandering about with his flute. There at Federal Hill he saw the corn top, the young folks rolling on the little cabin floors of the slave quarters. From these material sprang the words and music that have long become the property of the world and made Kentucky known in every clime."

"There has been no change at Federal Hill since the song was written, except in the woods and fields. The attic of the house was destroyed during the Civil war. Otherwise the old Kentucky home is 'My Old Kentucky' as Foster saw it in its glory, glory, beauty and pathos of old slave times. In the lofty feudal hall stands, in the same spot, the antique secretary where tradition says Foster sat and made the final note of the great song. The first rough manuscript he gave to his cousin. It was preserved there, but lost in the fire together with the gold-headed cane left to the elder Rowan by John Fitch, inventor of the steamboat. Other souvenirs of interest and value were also destroyed."

"Foster wrote the song in late August or early September, 1852. In 1919, Mr. Baker Smith, a well-known resident of Bardonia, in his 88th year and still alive, was probably the only living person who remembered the first singing of 'My Old Kentucky Home.' He recalled that there was a gay house party of the young folks, among them a young girl with beautiful voice. Foster coached her in its rendition, accompanied her on the piano and during an intermission in dancing she sang the song for the first time to a listening public. It was Federal Hill transcribed into music and poetry. The world has been singing and playing it ever since."

Foster was then 26 years old, in the height of his fame. He had been composing industriously since he was 20 and his songs were sung everywhere. 'My Old Kentucky Home' was published four months after it was written. Its career of immortality at once began and the song of Kentucky has now become a national anthem and a world expression of home sentiment. It is all this concentrated history, tradition and romance expressed in the beautiful song that Kentuckians everywhere are invited to purchase by voluntary contributions, preserve and perpetuate as a state shrine for future generations. Governor Edwin P. Morrow is ex-officio chairman of the board having the purchase in charge and A. T. Hert, of Louisville, is treasurer."

NICHOLASVILLE FLOUR MILL BURNS DOWN

Nicholasville, Ky., April 4.—The flour mill of the Star Milling Co., owned by John R. Williams, located near the Southern depot, was destroyed by fire Saturday. Mr. Williams was in Cincinnati on business when the fire occurred. The building was a frame structure. It held between 600 and 700 barrels of flour, a large quantity of corn meal and grain, all of which was destroyed. The loss is estimated at $40,000 or $50,000 partly covered by insurance.

It is not known how the fire originated. When it was discovered, Harry Williams, son of J. R. Williams, who was in charge of the mill, was at lunch. Martin Cooley engineer, and other workmen were unable to state the cause. The plant was built many years ago and was the home of "Bon Ton" and "Daily Bread."

Mr. and Mrs. Arch K. Francis are welcoming a fine son who has been christened Charles Kavanaugh Francis.

REPUBLICANS "POW WOW" OVER TICKET

Committee Meets Monday To Hand-Pick Candidates For County Offices

The ticket that the republicans of Madison county intend to put in the gld for the county officers is being picked at a meeting of the county committee, and other prominent republicans this afternoon, according to report which is general about the streets. The Daily Register reporter was not invited to the meeting, but it is generally understood that the republicans will not take changes on going into the regular primary in August and stirring up trouble in the party. Instead the county committee and leaders will endeavor to select a ticket that will get the most votes in November.

The meeting was held in the office of Secretary of the Committee Robert R. Burnham, Jr., which was crowded nearly all afternoon with "the faithful." In one or two cases, where they were several candidates for an office, it was being reported, that the committee was having some trouble in satisfying all parties, so that there wouldn't be a "hereafter."

It is understood that the following ticket will be agreed upon: Sheriff—Wm. Burgess. County Judge—W. K. Price. County Clerk—W. B. Turley. Circuit Clerk—Luther Todd. Representative—Jim Park, who is now practicing law in Lexington.

County Attorney—W. T. Short. Tax Commissioner—Walter Engle. Jailor—Owen Douglas.

Anyway, it is expected that the formal announcement will quickly be made of the candidates for each office that the republican will endeavor to "put across" in November.

HARDING TELLS HUNS HE STANDS BY ALLIES

But Expresses Hope for Reopening of Negotiations on Reparations Payment

(By Associated Press)

Washington April 4.—The attitude of the United States as to German reparations is contained in an exchange of communications with the German government today by the state department. They are in the form of a memorandum transmitted through Loring Dressel, American high commissioner at Berlin. Secretary Hughes expresses a hope the negotiations "may lead to a prompt settlement, which will at the same time satisfy the just claims of the Allies and permit Germany hopefully to renew her productive activity."

The memorandum was in reply to a communication from a German government official, which frankly admitted Germany is willing to pay, but hoped for a reopening of the question of the terms. The American reply made it clear that the United States proposes to stand by the Allies in enforcing just reparations. The state department emphasizes that the communications were exchanged before the arrival of M. Viviani, special French envoy.

PANOLA FARMER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

While unbalanced in mind, Bailey Wilson, of the Panola section, cut his throat with a small knife about noon Saturday. He was rushed to the Patton A. Mr. Wilson is about 50 years of age, and has a wife and seven children. His reason has been impaired for a couple of months, it is said. He made the attempt on his life at the home of his brother-in-law. It was said he was violent and hard to control, and in the event he recovers will probably be sent to an asylum.

MEETING HERE WAS VERY SUCCESSFUL

Classical Association Provides a Delightful Program—To Meet At Lexington Next

The two-day session of the Kentucky Classical Association which closed Saturday noon, is considered to have been one of the most successful meetings ever held in Richmond. The organization may now be said to be on a solid basis, although it was organized only last year. It was attended by a number of distinguished teachers from all parts of the state; the treasury shows a healthy surplus; and there were two invitations to the meeting for 1922. The offer of Lexington was accepted, that of Berea having been withdrawn until 1923.

The principal meeting from the point of view of the general public was Friday evening, when Dr. Gordon J. Laing, head of the department of Latin in the University of Chicago, gave his illustrated lecture on "Buried City of Roman Africa." The address was preceded by a group of Latin songs by the Department of Latin of the Eastern Kentucky State Normal School. One of the songs was composed especially for the freshmen class in the training high school; the others were well known Latin lyrics.

Dr. Laing's audience filled the chapel almost to its capacity, and heard with intense interest his very interesting account of what might have been considered a subject. His slides, showing an admirable selection of ruins and relics that have been unearthed in Tunisia and Algeria, gave a vivid picture of the once flourishing civilization under Roman rule in that region. Dr. Laing is not only a thorough and accurate scholar, but has a gift at studying men and manners, and visualizing to his audience the actual life of the times. He presents his material with remarkable clearness, mingled with an occasional flash of sly humor, so that there was not a dull moment in the address.

The officers of the association have received many congratulations on having secured Dr. Laing for this meeting. It is to be the policy of the association to have one such address at each meeting in addition to the discussions of the classics by the teachers of the state.

The Saturday forenoon session at the Normal was occupied by two addresses, and the business session. The first address was by Dr. Bower, of Transylvania College, who made a strong and in part analysis of the place of the classics in the curriculum. He spoke not from the point of view of the classical teacher, but from that of the student of education in general. He traced the history of the classical ideal in education from the time of the Renaissance, and showed that our whole modern intellectual life is merely a revival and development of the Greek idea of culture. The influence of the classics in making a cultured man, said Dr. Bower, is not confined to language, although we are indebted to the Greek and Latin classics for the whole atmosphere and life of nearly all the words that carry the thinking of the educated man today. In this he amplified the argument of the very able speech of Supt. Colvin on Friday afternoon. A literature is the life of a people; and the life of the classical peoples is really the beginning of the life of our own times. History emphasizes this continuity, but it cannot do it fully without the study of the classical languages themselves, since the history of any time cannot be clearly and richly seen unless studied in its sources in the original tongues. Hence, as a student of education he must expect that until there is a complete break in the continuity of our civilization, the Greek and Latin languages must continue to be an essential factor in our civilization, and the most important factor from a cultural point of view.

Dr. Granville Terrell of the University of Kentucky, spoke instead of President McVey, who was unavoidably prevented from coming. He urged the establishment of a chapter of the Phi Beta Kappa in Kentucky, and traced the history and development of Greek letter fraternities, and particularly those which have become an honorary recognition of scholastic distinction.

The officers elected for the coming year were: President, Miss Elizabeth M. Roff, Paris; vice president, Miss Mabel Politt of University of Kentucky; secretary and treasurer, Mr. Wren J. Grinstead, of Eastern Normal, Richmond.

The association extends its thanks to those who have helped to make the meeting a success, special mention being made of the faculty and students of the Eastern Normal and Madison High School, of Miss Anna Bell Ward who generously loaned the association the use of the Grand Opera House for the classical pictures.

An interesting announcement was that the General Education Board has appropriated $60,000 to make a nation-wide survey of the teaching of the classics. This is an enterprise in which the officers of the association have been much interested, and in behalf of which they have made strong representations to the Board.

The meeting concluded with a double picture show, "Aeneas' Descent Into the Underworld," staged by the high school girls of Atlanta, Ga., and "The Life of Julius Caesar," which was taken in Italy, and loaned to the Association by the George Kleine Co.

YOUNG NEGRO RUSHED TO PEN FOR SAFETY

Lexington, Ky., April 4.—Because of threats made to the police at the time of his arrest, Wm. Dunn, 19-year-old negro, who shot and fatally wounded G. W. Abbott, 75-year-old white man, of Rockcastle, Owen county, Sunday night, was removed from the Fayette county jail and taken to the reformatory at Frankfort for safekeeping. County Judge F. A. Bullock ordered the negro's removal.

The shooting took place at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night, Dunn, according to his story, fired two shots from a .32 calibre revolver at Abbott, who was standing in front of Dunn's home, 108 Ross street. Both bullets struck Abbott in the abdomen and he died in the Good Samaritan Hospital.

Patrolmen J. Jacobs and Jackson heard the shots and reached the scene in time to seize Dunn. During the short time between the arrest of Dunn and the arrival of the patrol wagon, a large crowd gathered. An attempt made to separate Officer Jackson from Dunn.

At the jail Dunn told the following story: "I was standing in my doorway whistling and a man came along. He put his hand on the side of the door and said: 'You're a damn whistling negro. I told him to go away from there and he cursed me and said he wouldn't go until he got ready. I went back in the house and got my gun and came out and shot him.'"

Abbott had been working at the tobacco warehouses.

TWO MEN FAINT AT SUNDAY SERVICE

Home Brew Makers and Others Whose Morals Are Below Par Scored by Evangelist

Cincinnati, April 4.—Those people who believe that money is everything in life—who get all they can and "can" all they get—had their beliefs shattered and flung to the four winds, at the Sunday tabernacle yesterday afternoon. Likewise, those who are careless in their personal habits and their personal cleanliness and whose morals are not up to the standard that has been set for them.

Makers and drinkers of "home brew" and those who believe beer has medicinal qualities also were made targets for disillusionment, for Billy Sunday opened up with his heavy calibre guns, centering his attack upon those things, which, he said, helped to demoralize the world.

It was a man's sermon for men—the third of his Sunday afternoon services for men only—and was full of facts, figures and statistics, and plain talk about the many things that Mr. Sunday declared must be eliminated or corrected if the efficiency of man is to be increased and the standards of the world made better.

Two men in the audience fainted under the stress of emotion aroused by Mr. Sunday's vivid portrayal of the harm caused by social evils and his exhortations of his hearers to live the right kind of life.

One man seated in the choir section at the rear of the platform, was crying softly at the height of the sermon, when he suddenly keeled over in his chair. He was removed to the emergency hospital at the end of the tabernacle and revived.

Another man, who was seated near the edge of one of the sections in the main part of the tabernacle, was assisted outside the building by patrolmen, who had noticed his hysterical condition. He recovered after he had walked around in the open air for a few minutes on the arms of two patrolmen.

Mr. Sunday offered his sermon yesterday as "The Devil's Boomerang," or "Hot Cakes Off the Griddle." Going in his best form, he started early with his plain (Continued on Page 6)

KERR CHARGES ON PROHIBITION LAWS

(By Associated Press) Lexington, Ky., April 4.—Strict enforcement of the laws regarding prohibition, gambling and pistototing and launching of a campaign against automobiles with drawn blinds along country highways, was urged today by Circuit Judge Kerr, in his charge to the new grand jury. "We thought when prohibition became effective there would be crime decrease," said the judge. "Sometime in the future that may be, but it does not exist now. There is some reason for it. There was never a law as much violated as the prohibition law. Men violate it who could not be induced to violate any other law. Men who never took a drink in their lives will go further to get one now than they would to escape from the penitentiary."

Flirting With Death

(Stanford Journal)

No, this isn't going to be an editorial on the triangle problem; there are other ways of flirting with death that are even more dangerous and one of these is fooling with so-called moonshine whisky. One of our exchanges points to the fact that even the revenue stamps purporting to show that whisky is bottled in bond now are counterfeited by whisky crooks and that ten persons died within a few days in Pittsburgh from drinking illicit whisky. In most of these cases of fatalities either had been used as one of the component parts of the beverage to give it a kick.

He who monkeys with whisky sold illegally flirts with death indeed. He who takes a drink of moonshine whisky may be taking the death draught. The vicious drinks being sold by bootlegger as "bottled in bond" goods or something just as safe often prove to be cheap and dangerous moonshine, colored to deceive the thirsty but careful drinker.

The Interior Journal does not believe it has many readers who want to drink whisky illicitly, but if it has any it hereby gives them solemn warning that the only whisky that is safe nowadays is the whisky that can be purchased legally. All one needs in order to get whisky legally is to develop a sore toe, a cough, a sprained ankle, or fall off a wagon in a barn and any one of about 500 Kentucky physicians will give him a prescription for at least a pint of whisky as a remedy. That is legal, the prohibition inspectors to the contrary notwithstanding, and it is safe.

400 HENS ALREADY IN EGG LAYING DERBY

(By Associated Press)

Murphysboro, Ill., April 4—Four hundred hens have been entered to date in a three-year national egg laying contest starting here November 1. The race is regarded in Illinois as the first of its kind ever held.

The contest was planned and will be conducted by Paul Arndt, high school instructor of vocational education here, and his class of forty boys.

Wide interest has been aroused among poultry men and eighty breeders from widely scattered sections have registered a pen of five hens each.

Training the boys have had, according to Carl Colvin, State Superintendent of Vocational Agriculture, will assure breeders that their poultry will receive the best attention. Business men of Murphysboro and poultry raisers of the vicinity have underwritten the race for $1,000.

The boys will market the eggs, providing chicken feed in return without cost. A market has already been arranged for St. Louis. The privilege of selling the eggs, it is believed, will offset the entire cost of the contest.

Trap nests will be used to avoid any possibility that the hen that does the cackling gets undue credit for laying the eggs. Poultry houses of the latest type are being erected by the high school boys on the school grounds.

Breeders who send their hens to Murphysboro for the first year of the contest will be privileged to enter a relay of fresh birds the second year.

In these times YOU cannot afford to be forgotten

THERE never was a better time to advertise than right now. The buying power of any average family has increased since last year—everybody is earning more money.

Buying Liberty Bonds, War Savings Stamps, and paying war taxes is a stimulus and a benefit to honest business.

Advertising in America has been the call to action in recruiting and bond buying and Red Cross subscriptions.

Advertising stirs people into more rapid action.

You have seen the successes of advertising campaigns for government projects, you have seen the success of advertising in building up big businesses.

Are you using enough advertising to accomplish what you most desire to accomplish for YOUR business?

The best time to advertise is when prices are high. Are you waiting for a better time than NOW to advertise?

Eliminate advertising and you reduce buying to its barest bread and butter basis.

Advertising makes buying; without it you must SELL.

It's hard to think of a business or a commodity that isn't advertised nowadays.

The big idea is how to get the most returns for every advertising dollar spent.

The modern advertising expert is not a literary genius nor a spell-binding solicitor.

He is student.

He is busy investigating Mr. Average Consumer; his needs, his habits, his tastes and his ability to buy.

Consult with one of the recognized and accredited Advertising Agencies named below. Allow one of them to submit an outline of the service they are prepared to render. You may be assured that an invitation to call will be appreciated and that no obligation whatsoever will be incurred.

Teachers' Conference.

The Teachers' Conference of the First Presbyterian church will meet Tuesday evening at 7:15 in the Masonic Temple.

Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the board meeting of the Patic A. Clay Infirmary.

Within the Walls of Home

IN THE realm of special privilege—that is within the four walls of home—all sorts of negligees blossom out, as varied and unlike each other as flowers in a garden. Here splendor-loving women can go as far as they like, drawing inspiration from all quarters of the earth and of other lands; and this is what they do. If anything odd or beautiful happens to be overlooked by them, some kind genius among costumers is sure to bring the neglected treasure to their notice in an alluring form, to his gain and theirs.

Considering everything the two negligees shown in the picture above are quite unpretentious. One of them in rose and blue georgette is a lovely and fragile looking affair in which old blue in a soft shade is posed over rose color, the blue over-garment showing a wide embroidered border at the bottom and narrow embroidered bands on the bodice. The underslip provides the brief kimono sleeves, and narrow ribbon the loose, long girdle weighted with beads and ornaments at the ends.

The loose, straight hanging coat of satin at the right, resembles a kimono more than anything else, but an ingenious fancy has introduced an odd drape at each side supporting a long silk tassel. Instead of a hem at the bottom a corded edge is draped up and tucked in irregular folds. This is the type of negligee that is enjoying the favor of woman-kind at present, and it is made oftentimes in changeable taffetas that furnish as beautiful colors as georgette can boast. As a rule bodice coats are shorter than the negligee pictured, and cut on more definite lines with set-in sleeves. They are often made with a long body having a deep flounce set on to form the skirt, and provided with pockets that are ornamental. Frills and ruffles made of the taffeta—especially when their edges are frayed—make the prettiest trimmings.

OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT

Gathered at the picture estate of Alfred Herter where Mrs. Enrico Caruso, summer tenant, suffered the loss of $400,000 worth of jewels by robbery, Corinne Griffith and her supporting company had some strange and interesting experiences.

The site was erected by Vitagraph scouts because of the Oriental scenes and settings on the estate. These served admirably as locations for scenes in "It Isn't Being Done This Season," a new Corinne Griffith production, which will be presented at the local theatres Tuesday, in which much of the action takes place on the estate of a wealthy Turk in Smyrna. Some of the scenes were taken in the room where the $400,000 jewelry robbery was committed.

Zargar, world famous mystic, who is to appear in person at the Opera House starting April 11, is a firm believer in positive thought and that nothing can triumph against it. According to the famous mystic, he conscientiously believes that anyone may attain any thing in this world that he wants it he but concentrates his mind on it and believes he will get it. Zargar further declares that you can "will" anybody to do anything, so long as it is good thought, but you can not "will" crime, for there doubt enters into the mind and destroys the power of the occult.

TRUANT OFFICER IS! AFTER JACK BOSLEY

Deputy Sheriff Will Johnson, of Berea, reported here Saturday that he had issued a warrant for the arrest of Jack Bosley, well known farmer on the Red House pike, on a charge of failing to obey the compulsory education law. Mr. Johnson says that Bosley has two little sons, aged eight and ten years, respectively, who are not attending school. John said that Bosley told him the reason he did not have the children in school is that they did not have the necessary clothes to wear. Mr. Johnson said he figured Bosley is worth about $100,000. Trial of the case was to have been held Saturday, but on account of absence of a witness for Bosley, he had the case postponed until next Friday afternoon.

Mr. Johnson, who is truant officer for Madison county, has been doing much work in getting the children of school age into school all over the county. He says that often he meets with much opposition on the part of the parents, as he did in the above case, but he intends to do his duty.

MARC KLAU SENDS $2,500 TO HOME FUND

(By Associated Press)
Frankfort, Ky., April 4.—The first subscription to the fund for the purchase of "Federal Hill," where Stephen C. Foster wrote "My Old Kentucky Home," was made by Marc Klaw, noted theatrical magnate. It was for $2,500 and was acknowledged by Gov. Edwin P. Morrow with a commission as colonel on his staff. The governor's unique extra-territorial proclamation issued yesterday, grew out of the suggestion in Mr. Klaw's letter.

Mr. Klaw was born in Louisville. His letter said: "I want to be the first, if possible, to contribute to that beautiful sentiment. There are no conditions. If it were possible for the movement to fail I should be satisfied to have you invest the sum in one square foot of the sacred soil and deed it to me. I should like to feel that I owned it. The exiles from Kentucky should have the privilege of contributing. You can depend upon them in every state and in foreign lands as being eager to give to such a purpose. Think of those WHO, LIKE ME, live a long way from the old home state but hold it always in loving memory. For many years I have had to make annual trips to Europe, to the Orient and many foreign ports. Everywhere I went, from bands, orchestras, street singers, and concert artists, I have heard that wonderful song calling me from home. You don't know what it is unless you have heard it a long way from America. It is as well known abroad as the national anthem and much more wonderful in its appeal. I have sat aboard with Americans from other states listening to it and the eyes of every one of us grew moist as its strain took us back home. Give the expatriates a chance to contribute to the memory of the song that has cheered and saddened them alike. The whole public of the United States is entitled to chip in. The song has become theirs as well as ours. It is the worldwide song of all Americans."

The U. S. collected during the month of March, $700,000,000 from incomes and profits taxes.

At Des Moines, four women served on the jury which gave a bandit the death sentence.

At Ithaca, N. Y., a flier fell 9,000 feet and escaped with only a few slight bruises.

LEGION NEWS

The final chapter in the Bergdoll affair in what the American Legion is waiting for, according to Col. F. W. Galbraith, Jr., National Commander, who declared that the release of Carl Neuf and Frank Zimmer, sergeants in the Army of Occupation, and under confinement in a German jail for their attempt to arrest Grover C. Bergdoll, is but a step in clearing up the situation involving the arch slacker.

Col. Galbraith said that the whole rank and file of the Legion demands that Bergdoll be returned to this country to serve the sentence imposed upon him for evading the draft.

Considerable pressure was brought to bear on the Secretary of War by the Legion's National Legislative Committee in its successful effort to effect the release of the two American soldiers. Paris post raised funds for counsel to defend them and posts over the country aided with contributions.

A resolution of the Legion's National Executive Committee express the regret of Legion members that an apology was made by the government for the attempt of the two sergeants to capture Bergdoll. Since that time a number of state department posts of the ex-service men's organization, have passed resolutions demanding that the government force Germany to return Bergdoll to this country.

An appeal to all patriotic citizens to bring pressure to bear on Congress for the passage of the American Legion legislative program for the relief of disabled veterans of the world war has been made by F. W. Galbraith, Jr., National Commander. The measure which the Legion is backing in the special session of Congress, are the Rogers-Capper, Wason, Stevenson and Kenyon-Fess bills.

The Rogers-Capper bill provides for the consolidation of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, Public Health Service and Rehabilitation Division of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, under one head in the Treasury Department. The adoption of a definite three to five year program for building new hospitals for disabled men, involving $25,000,000, is also included.

Decentralization of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance by establishment of fourteen regional branch offices, is the principal feature of the Wason bill. Relief for disabled veterans in hospitals or vocational training from payment of premiums and provision for ex-service men to pay premiums or reinstatement insurance at all postoffices are likewise provided for.

Disabled emergency officers of the world war would have the same privilege for retirement on three-fourths pay as now enjoyed by officers of the regular army if the Stevenson bill should be passed.

The Kenyon-Fess bill amends the Vocational Training Act to provide vocational training for Americans disabled in Allied armies, vocational training with

THE HOME TOWN PAPER

The magazine from here and there
That's full of snappy tales,
The City News with fragrant yarns
Of men who fill our jails,
With headlines bold, sensational,
Of some new holdup caper—
Each has its place, but first of all
Give me the Home Town Paper.

To me it means a whole lot more
Than just the weekly news,
Or comments on the nation's plight,
Or editorials views—
The joys and sorrows of the folks
I know and love are there,
The folks who know and love me,
Whose experiences I share.

The calling home of some dear friend,
Or where the stork has been—
The doings of the people
I am interested in—
These are the things which build for me
My little world each day;
'Cause folks at home mean more to me
Than facts from far-away.

I read with pride of how some home boy
Who's out to make his name,
And now is climbing step by step
The stairs that lead to fame.
It pleases me to read about
Improvements that are made
And how each merchant does his best
To build up local trade.

The magazines can tell us
All about the Isle of Ypp,
But our home paper strives to keep
Our village on the map—
So when the worth-while things of life
Are being handed out
The home town paper first of all
I want to have about.

VALLEY VIEW BANKER DIES IN NEW ORLEANS

Friends here received news of the death at New Orleans Saturday of Dr. Charles Daugherty at the age of 45 years. Dr. Daugherty organized the bank at Valley View, this county, during the days when that was the metropolis of the logging interests from up the river, and the site of many large saw mills and much activity. He served as cashier during the life of the bank, and then moved to Kansas City where he had made his home since. It is understood that he was largely interested in the National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio. Dr. Daugherty was a native of Jackson county. His remains will be taken to his old home near Clover Bottom, that county, for interment.

Making Preparations For Go-To-Sunday-School Day

(By Association Press)
Louisville, Ky., April 4—The final month's campaign that will end in "Go-To-Sunday-School" day May 1, started yesterday with "Every Member Present Day." During the day, thousands of "reminders" urging attendance on the first Sunday in May were distributed throughout the state, under direction of the Kentucky Sunday School Association.

Each Sunday during the month and the week of April 24 has been designated for a special purpose. Next Sunday, April 10, is "Family

Day." On that day, the association is urging that every family attend in a body. April 17 is "Friends Day" and April 24 "Neighbors Day." The week of April 24 is "Children's Week." In every community it is planned to hold a story hour for children and two parent-teachers meetings.

DO CATTLE "SUFFER" SEEING OTHERS DIE?

New York, April 4—Cattle suffer "mental anguish" when they see one another slaughtered at abattoirs, according to officials of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which soon will sponsor legislation designed to have each animal killed outside the presence of others. Hogs, sheep and other dumb meat producers likewise are sensitive to bloodshed and are terrorized by such practices, the Society contends.

Among the reforms which the organization will seek to effect by legislation is abolishing of the practice of "casting" animals before slaughter. This consists of binding their hind legs with rope or chain and then hauling them up with windlass so that their heads and foreparts suspend downward. While dangling in this position throats of the beasts are cut, the Society asserts.

It is argued that such practices cause the animals to suffer and that the only humane and proper way to slaughter them is by first stunning with sledge hammer blow between the eyes, causing instantaneous insensibility.

SWIFT PRODUCE REVIEW

Marketing of large supplies of poultry has caused general declines in price in both producing and consuming centers. It is believed that in sympathy with the decline in other food stuffs, the general average price will continue lower.

The egg market remained fairly steady during the week, with a good demand for current supplies. A large reserve stock is piling up in storage, the United States Department of Agriculture reporting stocks of 679,516 cases in Chicago, New York, Boston, and Philadelphia on March 30, 1921. On the corresponding date last year there were 4,319 cases in storage.

It is estimated that the total figures for the United States will show over 1,000,000 cases stored April 1, 1921, as compared with 121,733 cases on the same date in 1920.

There was little change in butter prices, although the arrival of 2,000,000 pounds of Danish butter in the early part of the week brought about a temporary depression. Some increases has taken place in butter production but there is a good consumer demand which is absorbing the make about as rapidly as it is offered.

Mrs. Wm. Reeves is quite ill, while her many friends will regret to know.

Born 72 years ago in Leesburg, Va., Mr. Field was educated in the common schools of Brownsville and Pittsburg, Penn., later becoming interested in banking and farming and in 1886 entered the theatrical business, organizing a minstrel show which has operated during every consecutive year since. The publication of the slacker list has been postponed. In Robertson county, Mrs. Fannie Woodward is a candidate for jailer.

TWO MEN FAINT AT SUNDAY SERVICE

statements of facts and the many little epigrams and pithy paragraphs that made his points effective.

"Don't worry about money," he declared taking up this topic with a series of stories to show that money is not everything in life.

"Don't worry about your money," he continued. "There'll be no pockets in your shroud. Your arms will be so stiff you couldn't get them in the pockets anyway."

"If your idea is to accumulate money, and if you are going to lie or steal or cheat or use crooked methods to get it; if you are not willing to go along like the others and want to cut across lots, go ahead; pile up your gold and your silver, until you get a pile as big as Manhattan. When you die you can't take it with you. If you could, it would all melt away."

"If you want to live to get all you can and can all you get and never mind how you get it, I hope to God you die in the poorhouse," he continued.

"We live for money, and you, if you owned the world, you'd be mighty glad if you only had standing room in heaven when you die."

Passing on to the subject of social evils, he defended the girl as the innocent victim. "I don't believe any girl that ever lived was ever impure, but that some brute of a man didn't take the initiative," he said.

He again came out for the single standards of morals for men and women alike. "I tell you, sir, that whatever is wrong for a woman to do is wrong for a man to do," he declared with emphasis. "God Almighty doesn't recognize any difference between wrong doing on the part of a wife and on the part of a man. In either case it's just grounds for divorce. I wouldn't wipe my feet, I wouldn't spit on that society that makes distinction between a man when he does wrong and a woman when she does wrong; and there is no difference to God whether the one that sins wears a plug hat or hairpins, a coat or petticoat."

Mr. Sunday then turned to an attack upon alcohol. To the credit of Cincinnati, he said, he had not seen one drunken man on the streets or elsewhere since he had come to Cincinnati.

"The alleged strength derived from alcohol and beer is a delusion and a snare," he declared. "It gives a man a feeling of temporary strength, through the paralysis of the nerves registering fatigue. It's all bunk, every bit of it. When the reaction comes the poor ass is worse 20 times over than he was when he started in. Every man drinks because of the alcohol. Take the alcohol out and he'd as soon drink dishwater. There is no nourishment in beer and now they want to make every drug store a sort of brewery agency. A man's a fool to uphold beer for its medicinal value. I don't care whether he is former Attorney General Palmer or who he is."

"Pneumonia has a first mortgage on a booze hoister. Eighty-two percent of the men who drink and live in sin die when pneumonia strikes them."

"Some people believe so much in home brew that if Jesus Christ were to live in Cincinnati there'd still be a lot of them making home brew."

He wound up the sermon with a long string of baseball reminiscences, which he worked in to give emphasis to some of the points he was making, and ended with a prayer for the salvation of men.

At his invitation 500 men came down the trail to take his hand. Mr. Sunday enlivened the trail-hitting by jerking a patrolman's cap from his head and wearing it at a jaunty angle for a few moments.

Paris Average Is $13

(By Associated Press)
Paris Ky., April 4.—Sales at the six loose leaf warehouses here have closed for the season. Approximately 10,994,000 pounds of tobacco were sold for an average of $13 per hundred pounds. Due to the low prices, it is stated, many tenant farmers saw their year's labor swallowed and their debts left unpaid, while many landowners who had endorsed bankable paper for their tenants likewise were compelled to make it good at the bank.

The impeachment of Gov. Robertson of Oklahoma, has been recommended to the legislature by the report of the House investigating committee.

THIS IS NATIONAL NEGRO HEALTH WEEK

(By Associated Press)

Louisville, Ky., April 4.—Furtherance of health work among the negroes of the state this week is the subject of the colored schools and churches throughout the state. Activities of welfare organizations among colored people all are being directed along the lines suggested by Booker T. Washington, negro educator, when some years ago he started what is now known as "National Negro Health Week."

The work in Kentucky is under the direction of the Inter-Racial committee of the Kentucky State Young Men's Christian Association. James Bond, of Louisville, state secretary for colored work, is in direct charge.

Each day of the week has been designated for some particular problem of vital interest. Yesterday ministers, physicians and others occupied pulpits of negro churches on health and sanitation. Today is "Person Hygiene Day" with the same persons giving talks on personal hygiene and cleanliness.

Tomorrow the schools will take up the subject of health and also will hold exercises in memory of the birthday of Booker T. Washington.

Wednesday has been designated as "Swat the Fly Day" and will be devoted to the destruction of breeding places of flies and mosquitoes. Educational talks on the dangers of insect pests will be given in negro communities.

"Tuberculosis Day" is Thursday. The work on this day will be devoted to education on the prevention and cure of the disease.

Friday is children's day when through understandable stories and other means they will be given the lesson of good health.

Saturday will be devoted to a general cleanup.

A Fund of Information That You Should Have

Disraeli, who for six years was prime minister of England, said: "It has been my observation that the most successful man in any undertaking is the man who has the most information."

It doesn't require any particular information just to go out and buy something. But to buy the best of that something at a price that is satisfactory to you—that is a successful purchase. And to make successful purchases you must have information.

Advertising gives you just that kind of information. It tells you where to go in order to get the best of anything you want at a fair price.

That is why it is a paying proposition for the man or woman who handles a pocketbook to study the advertisements in the Daily Register—regularly—every day.

To those who use it properly, newspaper advertising is a source of economy and satisfaction that never runs dry. It is a watch-dog of dollars—a guarantee of satisfaction.
